

Pro-Filer 2 Discontinued

One of our vendors unexpectedly stopped production on a critical part used in the Pro-Filer 2. They gave us no warning or potential for a lifetime-buy. Without this component, we have to do a full redesign of the product under a new development environment. Prior to this news, we had discussed a potential redesign of the Pro-Filer to add some new features but we were unable to justify this update due to a lack of industry demand. With this latest news, we have rekindled discussions of a redesign of the Pro-Filer 2 to a Pro-Filer 3, but our current R&D schedule is such that a redesign would not begin until at least early 2023.

Unfortunately, this means that we will not be able to provide Pro-Filer products for now. We apologize for any inconvenience and are taking requests from people who want to be notified of any updates on this product and its development. We do have enough exchange and repair components to meet our estimated potential warranty issues, which are minimal.

If you have an interest in purchasing a Pro-Filer 3, please send an email to sales@syndyne.com noting your interest in a new Pro-Filer, as well as, a number of Pro-filers that you would be interested in committing to purchasing prior to our development. This will help us gauge potential interest in the product and increase the likelihood of an eventual product release.
